Zach Bowie has been wrestling for years. It was something to do when he wasn't singing lead in his rock band. That all changes when the 171-pounder is injured and Zach is thrust into the starting lineup. He's surprised that the exhilaration of walking onto the mat feels as good as the rush he gets on stage. Maybe even better.

How far could he go if he wasn't smoking three packs of Marlboros a day? Zach is going to figure out a way to balance his two passions so he can find out.
